

ELKS' MONUMENT DESIGN SELECTED

Magnificent Shaft to Be Erected at Bedford City National Home.

169 North Lynamore Street.

Petersburg, Va., March 10.

At the last session of the State Association, B. P. O. E. of Virginia, held in Charlottesville, a committee was appointed to devise means and select a monument for the erection of an "Elks' monument" to be located at the National Elks' Home at Bedford City. This committee, composed of Frederick Harper, of Lynchburg Lodge, president of the State association; Max, P. Lind, of Richmond Lodge, first vice-president; C. S. Johnson, of Roanoke Lodge, second vice-president; Colonel J. S. Scott, of Lynchburg Lodge, and J. M. S. and W. Clifford Godsey, of Petersburg Lodge, met yesterday in the Elks' Home in this city to discharge their duty.

A handsome and imposing design was selected for the monument, which will cost in the neighborhood of $3,000. Upon a massive granite pedestal seven feet high will be mounted the bronze figure of an elk of life size. At the base of the pedestal will be inscribed the names of the lodge officers, and on its front will be placed a tablet bearing a suitable inscription. It is expected that the contract for the monument will be given out at an early date. The monument when completed will stand eighteen feet in height.

After adjournment the committee dined at the Stratford Hotel, and subsequently left for Richmond for the purpose of securing additional data for its work.

Political Notes.

It is expected that there will be three candidates for the House of Representatives in the legislative district composed of Prince George and Surry counties—two from Surry, S. R. Ham and W. Stanley Hurt, and almost certainly one from Prince George, though no formal announcement has been made. The senatorial district in which these two counties, with Sussex and Greensville, are embraced has three candidates for the nomination for the Senate—A. R. Hobbs, of Prince George; P. O. Goodrich, of Surry, and W. H. Purdy, of Greensville, all good men and true. The campaign is progressing quietly. All the present officers in Prince George will offer for re-election, and there may be opposition in some cases.

The Petersburg senatorial district, embracing Dinwiddie, as has been stated, has three candidates for the Senate in the field—two from the city and one from the county. As yet the canvass here is very quiet, though a good deal of work has been done.

Personal and Local.

Information has been received of the death yesterday at Victoria, on the Virginia Railway, where he was employed, of Ernest Meacham, a former well known young man of this city. The usual report and tea will be given at the Riverside Club tomorrow afternoon, the following committee of reception serving: Mesdames P. H. Drewry, H. C. Myers, J. W. Seward, P. C. Spencer, W. H. Ivey and M. J. Rabbly; Messrs. Helen Cameron, Donald Claiborne, Anabel and Clara Hays, Maud Hobbs and Ethel Plicher.

John Till, colored, a former letter-carrier in this city, was convicted in the Police Court this morning of petty larceny, and was sent to jail for thirty days.

The pretty village of Ettrick, across the river in Chesterfield county, is improving finely in the erection of new buildings, the improvement of its streets, etc. A movement is made some time ago to incorporate the community into a self-governing town, and this may be resumed at some early future date.

Invitation to Mexico.

Captain Robert Gilliam, Jr., commanding the Petersburg Grays, will probably go to the Mexican border with other Virginia officers. Major Benjamin Harrison, of the Second Virginia Regiment, received a telegram from Colonel Leedy this morning asking if he and his staff would accompany the Virginia militia officers to the Mexican frontier, to take part in the army maneuvers.

Major Harrison is unfortunately sick, and Lieutenants Bowie and Watson, of the Grays, are prevented by sickness from going. Lieutenant Kidd is anxious to go, but does not know whether he will be able to get away.

Until properly understood, the invitation to the officers to go to the frontier was thought to be an order by some of the privates for the whole militia to go.

In the car accident last night at the corner of Main and Wythe Streets, Blandford, by which Isaiah Harrison was crushed and killed, others made narrow escapes from serious injury. There were two passengers in the car—Mrs. Susan Griffith, of the Crater farm, and Captain William T. Miller, of the Fire Department. Mrs. Griffith was but little hurt, but Captain Miller and one of his fingers so badly smashed that it was amputated at the hospital. Motorman George Semons and Conductor M. T. Talley escaped injury.

The conductor and motorman were arrested, and were held until today, when they were released on bail in $200 each, to await the result of the coroner's inquest to-morrow.

Mr. Harrison is survived by two sisters—Mrs. J. H. Cornett, of this city, and Mrs. George Emory, of Prince George—by two brothers—Julian and Randolph Harrison, both of Dinwiddie.

OFFICERS EAGER FOR CAMP SERVICE

there is to be fighting, he will drop his business and go.

Wants to Get Back. The effect has been electrical upon local military organizations. For example, officers who have been on the retired list for some time are seeking readmission to the active service. It is believed that George N. Skipwith, now on the retired list, will be elected lieutenant of Company C, First Virginia Regiment, Monday next. He was formerly captain of this company, and served as its lieutenant during the Spanish War, when it mustered in as Company I, Second Virginia.

In addition, scores of applications of men for enlistment in the militia have been received by Major Price and the company commanders during the past few days. The ranks of the battalion will be filled to overflowing if men are called to the front.

Be Awaits Month.

The presumption is that the War Department will act quickly. It is regarded as essential for satisfactory instruction that the officers not only see how camps are conducted and troops are handled, but also how camps are established. Therefore they should be on hand within a few days. It would surprise no one if the order to move should come by the middle of the coming week, while it seems more likely that at least a week will elapse. The belief is that the officers will be expected to act promptly when the order comes.

As to the duration of the service, no intimation has come from the War Department. No one believes that it would be so short a time as ten days. It will consume about eight days in getting to and from the scene of the camp. The opinion prevails that the officers might as well make up their minds to be away from their homes for at least thirty days. The First Regiment officers last night made it "indefinite service."

General Vaughan Going.

General C. C. Vaughan, Jr., of Franklin, commander of all the Virginia Infantry save the Richmond Blues, is expected to leave for the scene of the camp. The opinion prevails that the officers might as well make up their minds to be away from their homes for at least thirty days. The First Regiment officers last night made it "indefinite service."

Colonel R. F. Leedy, of Luray, commander of the Second Infantry, was also here last night. So far as he has heard from the officers of his regiment, he believes a large proportion of them are anxious to go to Texas. He will be enrolled among the officers at the front.

Will Include General Sale.

It is practically certain that General Sale will go. He has been asked to do so by the governor, and is anxious for the service, and, unless some contingency arises which is now unforeseen, he will make one of the number. Lieutenant Joseph Le Masurier, assistant of the Blues, and chief clerk in the Adjutant-General's office, has offered to go. Major C. L. Wright, adjutant of the First Brigade, will go if the trains continue to run. Captain Charles M. Wallace has his trunk packed.

At the meeting of First Regiment officers last night, all sixteen were present, and just sixteen officers signed applications to be of the party for indefinite service. However, Major L. T. Price, the battalion commander, thought it best that one officer of each company should be selected to be left to the conference of officers to-day.

Need Major Price Here.

All of the battalion officers signed a paper asking Major Price not to go, and he will not make application. They expressed the opinion that the good of the battalion necessitates his remaining at headquarters in command.

An election will be held by Company C, Monday night, to fill the vacancy in the first lieutenant caused by the resignation of Lieutenant Levering. Second Lieutenant Samuel J. Harrison will probably be elected, and it is expected that Captain George N. Skipwith, retired, will be chosen second lieutenant. The latter says he no longer desires the commission, but wants to go to the front.

Captain J. H. Stone and Lieutenant W. H. Kindervater, of Company F, have withdrawn their applications to be placed on the retired list of the Virginia Volunteers, which they presented only this week.

Some Needed at Home. Major Price writes Colonel W. J. Perry in part as follows:

"I am considering the condition of my battalion at the present time, and thinking from information gathered that a call for the militia troops will be made some time in the near future, it is of superior importance that I remain here."

At a meeting of my battalion officers to-night, every man was eager to take advantage of the privilege, but I restricted them to the extent of requiring one officer in each company to remain. Both of my state officers desire to go, as well as two officers from each company. Should their request be granted, it would leave myself and four commissioned officers with the battalion, and I feel that we would be amply capable of taking care of the situation, believing that the officers who go at this time would be returned to their respective positions in the extent the battalion is ordered out. If any militia is required, or the services of myself or any of the officers or men, individually or collectively, are needed, I hereby state that we are ready upon notification. I am enclosing the individual applications of the various officers desiring to avail themselves of the opportunity presented."

NO NEWS OF MISS WARWICK

Captain of Steamer Not Certain That (Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

New York, March 10.—At the offices of the Old Dominion Steamship Company here it was said to-night that inquiries have been made for Miss Florence M. Warwick, of New Haven, Conn., who is supposed to have been swept overboard and drowned on the steamship Monroe, of that line, last Tuesday night, but that this was about all that was known of her disappearance.

The steamship Monroe arrived here on her return trip this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Captain Catrin went immediately to the office of the company to make a report on the case, and seemed reluctant to talk about the matter.

He said, however, that Miss Warwick's baggage got to Norfolk all right, but that he was not absolutely sure that she had boarded the ship here at the time of sailing.

William Smith, a lawyer of this city and an uncle of Miss Warwick, has gone to Norfolk to take charge of the hunt in that city for a trace of the young woman.

As stated in The Times-Dispatch yesterday, Miss Warwick was on her way to Richmond to visit her brother, Abram Warwick. It is known that she sailed from New York on the Monroe and her relatives are satisfied that she was swept overboard while the vessel was battling with the storm on Tuesday night.

No Trace in Norfolk.

Norfolk, Va., March 10.—All efforts to find any trace here of Miss Florence M. Warwick, who was on the steamer Monroe last Tuesday for Norfolk, en route to Richmond to visit her brother, Abram Warwick, has been without avail.

The last seen of Miss Warwick aboard the Monroe was on Tuesday before she retired to her room. The fact that she was strangely missing developed Wednesday night, when a chambermaid on the Monroe, in the occupied room, found the young woman's hat, umbrella, handbag and other small baggage. No one remembers having seen Miss Warwick aboard the steamer, after she arrived in Norfolk Wednesday.

While it is barely possible she may have left the steamer unidentified, the general belief is that she lost her life at sea on Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning, while the Monroe was on this coast. Whether it was a suicide or accidental death is uncertain.

NO TRACE OF LOST GEMS

Inquiry on Steamer Fails to Throw Light on Mystery.

Plymouth, England, March 10.—When the Hamburg-American Line steamer Amerika arrived here to-day it was stated that the inquiry on board had failed to throw any light on the mystery of the disappearance of the jewels lost by Mrs. Baldwin Drummond, formerly Mrs. Marshall Field, Jr., while she was returning to New York on the vessel two weeks ago.

English police officers boarded the steamer here, as did a number of German officials, with the intention of making an exhaustive investigation while en route for Hamburg.

condition in which she was left by the Civil War. She could not maintain a proper, modern and adequate educational system because it was impossible to find taxable resources of sufficient extent to raise the requisite funds to establish a broad school system. In the gloom of the days that followed the war, in the Reconstruction period, and in the time of the slow-growing business of the country, it was impossible for the Southern people to avoid the resentment against the rest of the nation which the memories of the recent Civil War engendered, and which their hard lot emphasized.

But with the coming of prosperity, with the realization of comfort in their lives, with a growing sympathy on the part of the North in their wronging of the serious problems confronting them, and with the sense of triumph in their success in overcoming their great difficulties, the Southern people have a new feeling of way and never before in the history of the country have the two sections been so friendly and in such complete union as they are to-day.

You have the race question in the South, and the question of efficient labor. Both are most serious problems, but I believe as strongly as I can believe anything that the solution is to be found in a system of primary and industrial education offered to every youth, male and female, white and black.

No Dividing Line. "It is a great pleasure for me to come to the South again. When I was here in the early part of my administration, I expressed the hope that might be permitted to do something to bring the North and the South closer together, and to give the Southern brethren that they were part of the Union and part of the government, and that we were all really Americans, with no more of a dividing line than we have now."

My hope has been realized, for my appointments of Southern men to high offices have been received throughout the North as well as the South, and proof that birth in the South and participation in the Civil War on the side of the Confederacy are not disqualifying factors in the most exalted positions of those plainly competent and fit.

In education, in civil order and in civilization has contributed greatly to the progress of the country, making a greater South, you have made a greater country. With what is almost monopoly in the growth of cotton, you have reached before, by rails, in great quantities that which all nations must have, and which you only can produce. You have reached the position of the rest of the world upon American industries.

For the proper evaluation of your industrial and agricultural successes, your representatives of the Southern States, gathered in a convention here, have been very busy making for the increase of your commerce, for the promotion of better farming, for the development of your resources, for the promotion of your progress."

The President referred to the defeat by Congress of a permanent tariff board, and declared that it was one of the great disappointments of the session.

"The most important thing which was done in the session just closed," said the President, "was the ratification of the treaty with Japan. The old treaty contained a clause with reference to a limit upon immigration which was a serious handicap to the Japanese. The new treaty omits this clause, but it goes into effect under the condition that the United States should maintain the present status of immigration, which Japan is herself limiting the immigration of her people into this country, and all this without the imposition of any restrictions on our part. Thus, without offending the patriotic pride of our neighbors upon the Pacific, we are able to maintain an important national policy. It insures the continued friendship of a most powerful and progressive nation, with whose development we have been intimately connected since Commodore Perry opened her ports."

The President's greatest disappointment of the session was the failure of the Senate to follow the lead of the House in ratifying the reciprocity agreement made with Canada.

"The South is particularly interested in the fact that vegetables and cotton are allowed to pass without duty by the removal of their heavy duties on both. But I do not ask your support on the ground of any local advantage. I ask it on the ground of the fact that if adopted, as the beginning of a new relation between our rapidly growing neighbor on the North and ourselves."

HARVARD AUTHORITIES SUPPRESS THE LAMPOON

College Paper Which Offensively Caricatured Rev. Lyman Abbott.

Cambridge, Mass., March 10.—The university authorities have suppressed this week's issue of the Harvard Lampoon and it was impossible to buy a copy of the magazine last night.

It contains a drawing which depicts the Rev. Lyman Abbott, the venerable editor of the Outlook, an arm in arm with Eva Tanguay, the pretty comedienne. The caption under the drawing is "Human Affinities." That the idea is not original adds to the offense, perhaps.

A New York weekly which satirizes fashionable society largely has had a series of such "human affinities" recently.

Objectionable Cartoon. The eloquent and learned Dr. Abbott preaches at Harvard two weeks each year. Nevertheless, the Lampoon displays him in a social and exaggerated manner, his massive head and whiskers. Miss Tanguay appears in a characteristically gay attitude and costume.

As soon as they saw the cartoon friends of Dr. Abbott wired to him in New York. This was forwarded to the university authorities and they suppressed the Lampoon's editors, chosen from their place presumably for their cleverness and aptitude. They were rebuked sternly and ordered to call in every copy of the Lampoon, and to destroy it, and to burn the copies that had not been put in circulation.

The Harvard Lampoon, a famous newspaper publication, made its appearance yesterday afternoon. Its contents were devoted chiefly to an article hitting at Irish-American editors in Cambridge politics and to a facetious attack on the Crimson, a student publication. This has served to keep alive the controversy started over the publication of a cartoon, entitled "Irish-Americanism," in the Harvard Lampoon, which was objected to by the university authorities as being offensive and amusing.

FRATS BANQUET

Medical Society Hears Addresses by Active Members.

Phi Chapter of the University College of Medicine, and Psi Chapter, from the Medical College of Virginia, representing the Richmond membership of the Phi Beta Psi medical fraternity, gave a joint meeting and supper at the Jefferson Hotel last night. There were present about forty of the active members and alumni.

A. A. Hauser acted as toastmaster, and the following speeches were made by active members: The Phi Beta Psi Chapter, "Fraternity," A. S. Brinkley; "What Is Fraternity?" C. W. Perry; "Significance of the Convention," J. W. Clarkson, Jr.; "The Platform," C. G. Grove; "The Life of the Chapter," L. T. Stoneburner; "That Chapter House," W. M. Brunette. Alumni toasts were responded to by Dr. Ernest Lowy and Dr. Jerold Ezekiel, of this city, and Dr. R. H. Dunn, of Huntington, W. Va.

CHILDREN AFFECTED

By Mother's Food and Drink.

Many babies have been launched into life with constitutions weakened by disease taken from their mothers' milk. Mothers cannot be too careful as to the food they use while nursing their babies. The experience of a Kansas City mother is a case in point:

"I was a great coffee drinker from a child, and thought I could not do without it. But I found at last it was doing me harm. For years I had been troubled with dizziness, spots before my eyes and pain in my head, to which was added, two years later, a chronic sour stomach."

"The baby was born 7 months ago, and almost from the beginning it, too, suffered from sour stomach. She was taking it from me!"

"In my distress I consulted a friend of more experience, and she told me to quit coffee; that coffee did not make good milk. I was not sure, so I tried it. It really dried up the milk."

"So I quit coffee and tried tea, and at last cocoa. But they did not agree with me. Then I turned to Postum with the happiest results. It proved to be the very thing I needed. It not only agreed
